Land Acknowledgement

As an institution dedicated to our Jesuit values, Georgetown University recognizes that the land we currently occupy was and still is the homeland of the Nacotchtank and their descendants, the Piscataway Conoy people. We acknowledge that these peoples and many others were forcefully removed and that this University’s occupation is fundamentally tied to colonial development. We acknowledge that the consequences of this removal continue to affect these Indigenous communities. We offer our gratitude for the land and her people as we learn, teach, work, and commune.

This University celebrates the resilience, strength, and enduring presence of Indigenous people demonstrated around the world. We are committed to supporting the Indigenous members of our community as we educate ourselves on Indigenous histories, cultures, and issues. This is a reflection of our commitment to the values of People for Others as we form our Community in Diversity.

Equity

“The state that would be achieved if individuals fared the same way in society regardless of race, gender, class, language, disability, or any other social or cultural characteristic.

NAEYC Advancing Equity in Early Childhood Education Equity Position Statement, 2020
Furthering our Understanding of Equity

“To show that there is inequity, but not why there is inequity leaves too much open to interpretation. The reality is that we live in a racially structured society. That is what causes inequity”

Elevate Equity

Recognize that.....

- Principles of equity and antiracism should be integrated not an add on.
- IECMHC is well positioned to disrupt racism, bias, and other forms of marginalization in the settings in which we consult.
- Research shows that IECMHC can reduce racial and gender disparities, by supporting the adults and systems that make decisions about children (Shivers, Farago, & Gal-Szabo 2021).
Role Relates to Equity

1. ROLE OF THE IECMH CONSULTANT

Understands and can convey how IECMH is a mental health specialization and service that is distinct from other activities in which mental health professionals may engage. Demonstrates an ability to strengthen families’ and program or other setting staff’s capacity to support the social, emotional, and relational health of infants, young children, and families in a range of programs or other settings. Partners with families and early childhood providers in working to prevent mental health problems from developing or worsening and/or in responding effectively to existing mental health concerns. Partners with staff, program or other setting, and systems leaders to build more equitable systems for infants and young children by addressing explicit and implicit bias, increasing positive relationships between early childhood providers and infants and young children with different abilities and from different racial/ethnic and language backgrounds, monitoring and using disaggregated data to reduce disparities, and developing and implementing policies that support positive and equitable experiences for all young children.

1D. Embraces the Consultative Stance and Reflective Practice

1D.3. Understands implicit bias and systemic racism and their manifestations, and how they affect adult behavior and the experiences of infants, young children, and families from historically marginalized and oppressed communities. Explores how principles of racial equity are inextricably linked and aligned to the 10 elements of the consultative stance.
The Consultative Stance

“The key to consultation lies in the process rather than the specifics. Mental health professionals are trained to lead the process... to uncover the motivations & desires of individuals and to identify the impediments to change and the opportunities for intervention.”

- Johnston and Brinamen, 2006

1H. Explicitly and Intentionally Promotes Equity from the Individual Level to the Systemic Level

1H.1. Partners with staff, program, other setting, and systems leaders to build more equitable systems for infant and young children by understanding the role and importance of ongoing personal transformation...
1H. Explicitly and Intentionally Promotes Equity - from the Individual Level to the Systemic Level (cont.)

1H.1. ... discussing explicit and implicit bias and intervening to address its behavioral manifestation; increasing positive relationships between early childhood providers, infants, young children, and families with different abilities and from different racial/ethnic and language backgrounds; continuously monitoring and using disaggregated data to identify and address disparities; and advocating for and supporting the implementation of policies that support positive and equitable experiences for all infants and young children.
